

September 17 – Saco, ME

Today we woke up to a sunny day. After walking the dogs, having some coffee, stitching and playing a game we decided to take a drive through Saco and Old Orchard Beach with the top down. Old Orchard Beach seems to be very touristy with lots of sidewalk cafes and t-shirt stores. There is a car show in town, so we are seeing a lot of vintage cars and motorcycles with the owners that love them having a top-down day. We stopped at Beach Bagles and enjoyed the people watching.

Early afternoon we returned to move the RV to our home for the next 3 weeks at Sun Outdoors Saco Old Orchard Beach. I took the dogs for a walk and got familiar with the park, they do have a fairly nice off-leash area and the park is only about 25% full so it is quiet and pleasant.

I am always amazed how good a stay-at-home stretch feels after travel, even a short drive over several days. So, we ordered some take out, snuggled into the couch and watched the Badgers win their game.
