

September 18 – Saco, ME

Today we woke up to a sunny day, but it is supposed to cloud up and start raining in the late afternoon. I felt good to get out for a walk this morning. I got familiar with the immediate area, although I did stay on the roads, not finding the Eastern Trail, which I know is close.

We took a drive to Bay View Beach, just a couple miles south of Old Orchard Beach because dogs are allowed. There were very few people so the dogs got to run and we got our feet wet. Then we drove up the coast towards Portland. We saw a couple of things that we put on our to do list. With the rain moving in we headed back to the RV and Kai and I went to Sea Salt Lobster and I had a lobster roll. Very good and we will likely go again.
